BY BERNARD LEON. As on the tempest-troubled shore The lonely seaman stands, And sadly gazes on the wrecks That strew the beaten sands, He sorrows o'er his ruined hopes, And breathes a mournful prayer-When, breaks a wave upon his feet, And leaves a treasure there. With joy upon the waif he looks. Then grasps the welcome prize. And in the path of life once more The light of gladness lies.

As 'mong the dust of centuries A traveller gropes his way, For relic of some olden time, That long has passed away, Perchance, as thoughtfully he turns The gathered mould of years, Amid the things of little worth, A volume rare appears. With keen delight he views it o'er And joys to know its page Will send a flood of light athwart Some dark but golden age.

So, when upon the shores of time The waves of memory beat. And nought but wrecks, far, far around, The troubled eye can meet, The weary cast-away of life, In mute despairing stands-When, lo! the billows part, and leave A treasure on the sands. A generous deed, long buried deep Within its silent breast. From out the waste of waters comes. To bid the wanderer rest.

So, 'mong the fallen hopes of youth The spirit gropes its way, For tokens of the happy past, To cheer its sad decay. A noble act, forgotten long, Leaps forth to glad the sight. And sheds upon the gloom of years A calm and holy light. The mourner clasps it to his heart, And, in that hour of need, More worth than all the wealth of earth Shall be that generous deed.

[From the Troy Daily Times.] Labor and the Laborer.

The laborer is God's nobleman. He is the mainstay of society. He feeds and clothes communities. He is the civilizer as well as the producer. But for his well-directed industry, hu-man subsistence could only be obtained by the appliance of savage life-by hunting or fishing, or by the inhuman barbarity of cannibalism.

Labor has made our country great; and its work has but just commenced. The field is almost illimitable. Comparatively, the laborers are few. Conceding the worth of labor, and according to it the honor justly its due, it occupies a position of dignity which all must respect and none need be ashamed to acknowledge. Labor produces. Production supplies necessities and affords luxuries. Every penny in the coffers of the rich man was in some way produced by labor. As money is the representative of value, so value, in our realization of its essential virtue, attaches only to that which labor has had some hand in work-

In this country labor is more honored and better paid than in any other. This is owing to the expansive field for operation here presented, to our free institutions, and to the comparative pancity of capital. Wealth, too, is so distributed that it cannot be concentrated, as in the old world, so as to exact its own terms from labor. Hence the thrift which crowns and blesses industry, limited only by the degree of enterprise which directs it, and by the skill with which it is

It is a curious anomaly in the economy of man and of society, as connected with human industry, that the product of labor is, and always has been, the worst enemy of labor itself. Though capital affords employment, it not unfrequently oppresses the employed, even in this free country. e "laborer is worthy of his hire;" and if any class of men on earth deserve the means which ure comfort and contribute to happ it is the laboring class. But capital, monopolizing the facilities for employment, exacts its own terms of labor.

The laborer has a hard, plodding life at best; he should be encouraged by general remunera-tion, and cheered on by popular respect and ap-proval. Thus a stimulus to exertion will be afforded-an incentive to good conduct presented, which will not only be more than repaid by augmented production, but must likewise promote the honor, the well-being, and the morality of communities.

The capitalist is his own worst enemy who attempts to add to his benefits by withholding from labor its honest dues. Thus oppressed, labor is grudgingly bestowed, and the business for which it is employed is often neglected or half done; when, if well paid, it moves with a will, and ac-complishes its work with a thoroughness that leaves no room for dissatisfaction. The laborer then lifts his head and walks like a man; he then lifts his hend and walks like a man; he works, too, as the man of free spirit and unchained limbs can only work. It is, therefore, clearly the interest of the employer to give remunerative wages to the employed.

There are too many laborers in our large towns and cities. The supply is greater than the demand. Hence we often witness wretched poverty among those who, if opportunity were afforded, would cheerfully work and earn a comfortable living. It is surprising to us that day laborers especially will cling to cities with such tenacity, and endure the horrors of want—often, too often, reduced to the necessity of beggary—when they might go into the country and always make sure, at least, of a living. Here they cannot even make that all the seasons of the year, however much favored in the business season. It is this concentration of surplus labor in our large towns and cities that of surplus labor in our large towns and cities that places it at the mercy of capital and degrades it to servitude.

In this country the working man holds in great degree his destiny in his own hands. If he "act well his part," thrift and happiness will be his portion. With unshackled sinews, a free spirit, and ready hands, he may, indeed, be the architect of his own fortune.

A YANKEE AT VESUVIUS .- Go where you will, you meet Americans. We had no sooner set foot in Pompeii, and were busy exploring the Temple of Isis and the sacrificial altar, when in came three curious Yankees and joined our party. The other day, on reaching the top of Vesuvius, I descried a man sitting astride a block of lava. I don't know why, but I marked him at once for one of my countrymen. As I advanced toward him, I could not help noticing the cool manner in which he and Vesuvius were taking a morning smoke together. His long nine was run out like a bow-sprit, and he took the whole affair as as one would look upon a kitchen fire at home. As soon as I came up with him, he bawled out, "Halloo, stranger! Pretty considerable lot of lavy raound here! Any news down below?
Ye haint tuckered aout, be ye?" On my asking him if he had looked into the crater, he replied, "Yaas, but I burnt the laigs of my trowsers, tell yew!" He turned out to be a man from New England, who came up from Marseilles to see the volcano, and a more delightfully verdant gentleman is not common in these parts.—Boston Transcript.

THE DAILY AMERICAN TELEGRAPH.

OUR SECOND YEAR! One year ago this day was issued the first number of the American Telegraph. We were then assured by many intelligent citizens of Washington that it had already been fully demonstrated that such a paper could not live here, and that ours could not exist three months; while cautious men of business assured us that if we should succeed in sustaining it, then they would give us their support! The predictions of the former have proved baseless-the wish that was father to the thought has not been realized; and the promises of the latter have not been redeemed.

Cut off from all hopes of the kind of patronage on which other papers of this city fatten—en-countering the overwhelming competition of Wash-ington papers supported by the government pa-tronage, and the newspapers of Baltimore, that derive their support from a commercial and man-ufacturing population of one hundred and eighty thousand persons—proscribed in official places—avoided by timid men in office—opposed by the concerted influence of a portion of a respectable religious communion, upon a pretext entirely baseless—without the influence in the community of connexions and friends to defend us from the adroit opposition of interested competitors,-we have yet maintained our position, and to-day stand before our fellow-citizens prepared to serve them faithfully, fearlessly, and independently.

We have no favors to ask. We have respect and good-will toward the people of this commu-nity, and intend to merit theirs in return. But we shall not do this by flattering their follies, or appealing to their sympathies. When such a course as this becomes necessary to insure success, we shall not be ashamed to fail. But until it does, our path shall lie onward and upward.

We will neither fail nor falter.
Now for a few familiar words. Why do we not sell our paper as cheap as the Baltimore papers are sold? is the frequent question. We reply, Because we are not in Baltimore—because a commercial city of one hundred and eighty thousand people can yield an amount of advertising cus-tom not to be obtained in a community of forty thousand people who do their shopping in Balti

Do their shopping in Baltimore! Yes, by a wilful and unreasonable opposition to the only cheap paper of their own that ever could survive their slights, the business men of Washington give all the aid in their power to promote the interests of Baltimore merchants here. The Baltimore papers contain Baltimore advertisements; and the people of Washington compile their memoranda from such advertisements, send their orders to Baltimore, obtain their goods there, and thus make our own storekeepers pay a well-merited penalty.

Would we proscribe the papers of Baltimore?
By no means. We regard the morning as flat and dull that does not bring them to us. We are willing to encourage their circulation here. They should bring light and knowledge to every home and place of business throughout our whole city. Every one should rejoice in the facilities they afford. But the extensive circulation of a Washington afternoon paper, with the advertisements of Washington business people, should preserve us from the temptation of sending to Baltimore for those commodities which can as well be obtained in Washington. It was with special reference to this that we commenced an afternoon paper. We knew the advantages offered by the penny press of Baltimore—we appreciated them fully; we did not wish to come in conflict with them. We intended not to cross the path of those journals; and we believed our purposes would be approved by our own people.

By many they have; but not by all. So far from this, we seriously doubt (call it egotism if you will!) that there is another man in Washington who would have clung to an enterprise as the writer of this has adhered to that upon which he had embarked—laboring without present re-compense, and with but feeble hope for the future; and even, from bitter necessity, submitting to a transitory public misapprehension of his true position in particulars of the most serious

But away with the past. The present around us, and the prospect before, are what now con-cern us. We have no revenges—no regrets. We have no enemies that we know of, and care not a dime for any that are unknown. We intend to labor on, to improve with increasing means, to stand by our friends, to make them many, to stifle no sentiment, to sacrifice no opinion, to conciliate no bigot, to flatter no money-worshipper, to bow before no official upstart, to sanction no public or private wrong, and in general to live honestly, soberly, democratically, and peaceably, and die only when our time shall have come. If, therefore, any of our fellow-citizens shall feel inclined to give us kind words of encouragement, and to render us kindly aid, at the com mencement of this our second year, we cordially invite them to our office. We will greet them at the threshold with a friendly welcome, endeavor to make a good return for all the benefits we shall receive at their hands, and preserve them from all future regrets that such has been their

WILMINGTON BOARDING SCHOOL

FOR BOYS.—This institution is situated in one of the healthiest parts of the city of Wilmington, entirely beyond the settled portions of the town. The uniform healthfulness of the location may be inferred from the fact that, since the establishment of the School, about twenty-eight years, very few cases of serious indisposition have occurred among the pupils, and not a single death either here, or from diseases contracted white here.

The course of instruction includes, besides the ordinary English branches, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Physiology, History, Rhetoric, the various branches of Mathematics, and the Latin, Greek, and French Languages. Particular attention is paid to the higher Mathematics and their application to Mechanics and Engineering; the latter and Surveying are taught practically by field operations, with the use of appropriate instruments. Lectures on Natural Philosophy and Chemistry, in which all the important principles are illustrated by experiments, are regularly delivered before the students.

As the object is to make the instruction as thorough and practical as possible, no expense has been spared in providing suitable apparatus. It is believed that, in this respect, the Institution will compare favorably with any similar one in the country. A carefully selected library, of more than one thousand volumes, containing works on the various branches of Literature and Science, furnishes ample reading matter; while a Laboratory, fully supplied with apparatus and tests, contains all that is necessary for practical instruction in Chemical Manipulation.

The school year commenced on the third Second-day (Monday) of the Ninth month, (September,) and is divided into four quarters of eleven weeks each, leaving a vacation of two months, from about the middle of the Seventh month (July).

HUNT'S MERCHANTS' MAGAZINE AND COMMERCIAL REVIEW. Established, July, 1839,

BY FREEMAN HUNT, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR. THE Number for December, 1850, completed the twenty-third semi-annual volume. The work has been enlarged since its commencement in July, 1858, and each volume now contains more than seven hundred large cotave pages. A few complete sets of the Magazine may be obtained at the publisher's office, 142 Fulton street, New York, neatly and substantially bound, for two dollars and a half per volume.

The following are a few of the many commendatory letters received by the editor of the Merchants' Magazine from distinguished statesmen:

Letter from the Hon. Henry Clay.

ASHLAND, 20th July, 1849.

Dear Sir: I wish to express to you the gratification I derived on receiving the July number of the Merchants' Magazine and Commercial Review, from viewing your portrait in the beginning, and from reading your address to your friends at the end of it. When we feel under obligations to those who have contributed to our information and amusement, we are naturally desirous to possess all the knowledge of them, of their appearance, of the features of their countenance, and of the character and habits of their mind, which we can acquire. You have placed your numerous readers (at least you have me, if I may not speak for them) under those obligations; and the number of your valuable work now before me, in some degree, satisfies the desire to which I have alluded.

I have become quite familiar with the Magazine and Review, and have no hesitation in expressing my humble opinion that it is eminently entitled to the public regard and support. It collects and arranges, in good order, a large amount of valuable statistical and other information, highly useful not only to the merchant, but to the stateman, to the cultivator of the earth, to the manufacturer, to the mariner, in short, to all classes of the business and reading community.

Entertaining this opinion, I am glad that thas been, and to the mariner, in short, to all classes of the business and reading community.

Entertaining this opinion, I am glad that it has been, and hope that it may continue to be, liberally patronized.

Offering you cordial assurances of my esteem and regard, I am truly your friend and obedient servant,

Freeman Hunt, esq.

Extract of a letter from Hon. Millard Fillmore.

Extract of a letter from Hon. Millard Fillmore.

"I have read it (Merchants' Magazine) with a good deal of attention, and have no hesitation in saying that I think it one of the most valuable periodicals that was ever published. To the merchant it seems quite indispensable, and to the statesman and man of general information almost equally desirable. It is a grand repository of useful facts and information, which can be found nowhere so well digested and so accessible as in these numbers. I only regret that I do not own the whole work."

Litter from the Hon. Thomas H. Buston.

Latter from the Hon. Thomas H. Benton. Mr. Freeman Hunt.—Sir: I owe you many thanks for the opportunities I have bad to read the Merchants' Magazine, and have found it in reality to be a magazine, and that well replenished, of all the useful matter which the title would imply, and presented with a fulness and clearness which delights while it instructs. It is, in fact, a merchants' magazine in the large acceptation of the clearness which delights while it instructs. It is, in fact, a merchants' magazine in the large acceptation of the term—merchants who go between nations, whose large operations bring many departments of knowledge, and a view of the state of the world, into daily requisition. But it is not the great merchant only, but the one of more modest, but, nevertheless, of most useful operations—the merchant of the interior also—who will find this magasine to abound with the information the pursuit of his business and the elevation of the mercantile character requires. Nor is its utility at all confined to merchants, but extends to the legislator and diplomatist, and to all who are charged with managing the affairs of the nation. For myself, I have found it most useful to me in my senatorial labors, and have been in the habit for many years of carefully consulting it.

Very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

THOMAS H. BENTON.

Letter from Hon. Wm. H. Seward. My Dear Sir: Have the goodness to place my name en your list of subscribers for the Merchants' Magazine. I regard it as an invaluable work for the use of all who would understand not merely commercial operations in this extending country, but the fiscal and commercial questions involved in the administration of the govern-

I am, with great respect, your humble servant,
Freeman Hunt, esq. WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

COLD SPRING WATER CURE. THIS NEW AND SPLENDID ESTABLISHMENT for

THIS NEW AND SPLENDID ESTABLISHMENT for the scientific treatment of the various diseases with which the human system is afflicted, is situated about three miles from the city of Buffalo, in a rural spot, and so accessible from all points as to be reached without inconvenience or delay.

A line of omnibuses runs from the steamboat landings in Buffalo to the springs every ten minutes.

The house and grounds are near the extensive and beautiful green-houses and nurseries of the Meszrs. Hodges & Bryants; and the scenery in all directions is unsurpassed, as regards either variety or beauty; embracing points of view, from which may be taken in at a glance the broad expanse of Lake Erie, the Niagara flowing majestically towards the Falls, extensive forests, and the "Queen City of the Lakes," with its moving panorama of steamboats and ceaseless enterprise. "Queen City of the Lakes," with its moving panorams of steamboats and ceaseless enterprise.

The water, taken immediately from the celebrated "Cold Spring," is unsurpassed as regards coldness and purity, by any in the United States. The house, recently erected at a cost of about seven thousand dollars, has been fitted up in a neat and elegant style, at considerable extra expense, and is sufficiently capacious to accommodate seventy-five patients.

Connected with the establishment, and constitu 2; one of its attractions, are the fixtures and convenience:

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The institution is under the general supervision of S. M. Davis, M. D., Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Central Medical College, and Geo. W. Davis, M. D., formerly of Dansville, N. Y., the resident physician, and is permanently associated with the before mentioned gentleman as counsel, and associate of the medical board of control. And the friends of the establishment deem it a matter of felicitation that the services of Miss Mary M. Taylor, a lady of high medical attainments, who has attended two courses of lectures in the Central Medical College, have been secured, and that female patients can at any time avail themselves of her invaluable aid and counsel.

The steward's department is under the control of a gentleman eminently qualified for that position; and unweared pains will be taken to have every thing appertaining to the establishment arranged on a plan, and conducted in a way, to ensure the comfort, and promote the health and happiness of all who may wish to avail themselves of its benefits. Baths of all descriptions, adapted to the cure of the various forms of disease, and constructed on a scale not inferior to those of any other establishment in this country.

An enlightened public sentiment has everywhere repu-MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

of the various forms of disease, and constructed on a scale not inferior to those of any other establishment in this country.

An enlightened public sentiment has everywhere repudiated a reckless use of drugs in the treatment of disease; while intolerable sufferings and broken constitutions have imperatively demanded "Reform." A return from a wide and fatal departure from the simplicity of Nature's laws is called for, allke by a rational love of happiness and the deplorable exigencies of our condition. Hydropathy, or a scientific use of water as a restorative and curative agent, is a practical substitution of a simple and remarkably efficacious mode of curing the sick; for that system of drugging, depleting, and cauterising, which, in obtaining the mastery over disease, too frequently places the patient beyond the reach of further annoyance. The success of the various Water Cure establishments in this country, to say nothing of any other, has fully confirmed the hopes of the early discoverers and promulgators of the great truths upon which the system is founded, and renders verbal communications unnecessary. It is deemed sufficient to say, that the "Cold Spring Water Cure" will compare favorably with any of the well-conducted establishments of a similar character, and will be found equal to the best, as regards the order, convenience, and desirableness of its arrangements. The institution is now open for the reception of patients, and in full operation.

TERMS. For board, medical avice, attendance and nursing, &c., from $7 to $14 per week, payable weekly, varying according to the room and attention required. Each patient will be required to furnish two lines sheets, two cotton comforters, one woulen blanket, and four towels; or, where it is not convenient for the patient to furnish them as above, they can be supplied at the establishment by paying fifty cents a week.

All communications for medical advice should be addressed either to S. M. Davis, M. D., or to George W. Davi 'M. D., 239 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.
